Talmandor's Bounty Quartermaster's Log

This small notebook accounts for all tools, material resources and foodstuffs owned by the colony. Detailed accounts describe who checked out which tool and when. The log reports on tool repair, as well. An account of foodstuffs describe plans to harvest beans, sweet potatoes, rye, corn and oats, however, a plentiful supply of local fruits, nuts and game kept the colony well fed. A careful study of this notebook reveals the colony was in desperate need of finding suitable quantities of hardwood for building materials, stone for foundations and fortifications, and minerals or other metal ore to smelt and forge into weapons and tools. The last entry was made on Wealday, Neth 31.

The penmanship in this log is unique. The script is flowery and flows generously across the page.

The logbook is divided into two sections, one for the tool house and the other for the provisions shed. The last entry for each section is as follows:
